A Royal Reception.

Last night Miss Kennedy opened her second season in this city at the Temple before one of the largest audiences that has gathered at that popular place of amusement this season. Her reception was indeed a royal one, which showed that the performances given by the fair artist and her excellent company last year were highly appreciated. The play presented last evening was "The Case of the Convent," entitled "Casey's Troubles," written expressly for Miss Kennedy by the eminent comedian, Mr. Keely, who is Miss Lillian's main support. The play is one which abounds in side-splitting situations, overrunning with fun, and was heartily applauded by the large audience, judging from the storms of applause rendered during its presentation. Miss Kennedy looked more beautiful than ever last night, and had in no manner lost any of her former vim. She was called before the curtain at the close of each act. Mr. Keely, the man of fun, also received a hearty welcome, and kept the audience convulsed with laughter.—Central (Elizabeth, N. J.) Herald, January 8, 1898.

To-Night at 7:30 and 9:30.

Prof. Colby's free lecture on "How to Learn German in Five Weeks," will be given at the above hours to-night in the Haworth block. Go early if you wish to secure seats. His regular five weeks course begins on Monday at 4:30 and 8 p. m., and bids fair to be largely attended.

Inherited Scrofula.

Swift's Specific (S. S. S.) cured my little boy of hereditary scrofula, which broke out all over his body, and he had to be put in bed, and I had given up all hopes of his recovery, when at length I decided to use S. S. S. After using only 25 cents worth he was entirely cured. Not a symptom now remains of the disease. This was three years ago.

MRS. T. L. MATTHEWS, Mathersville, Miss.

TRADE MARK S. S. S. TRADE MARK

In the early part of last year I had a violent attack of rheumatism, from which I was confined to my bed for over three months and was unable to get up, and I was in bed, or even raise the cover. A nurse had to be in constant attendance day and night. I was so tired that what little nourishment I took had to be given me with a spoon. After calling in the best local physicians, and trying all other medicines without receiving any benefit, I was induced by friends to try Swift's Specific (S. S. S.). I discontinued all other medicines, and took a course of S. S. S. thirteen small bottles, which effected a complete and permanent cure.

AT THE GRAND.

Ullie Akerstrom will be here two nights next week. Monday she will play "Annette," the Dancing Girl, and Tuesday "Renah, the Gypsy Girl." Or her husband, the Gypsy King, will play "The Gypsy King." She is an artist in every sense of the word. Her charming personality draws all hearts to her from the moment she puts her foot on the stage. She has an expressive childlike face, a slender, girlish figure and an unaffected simplicity of manner that eminently fits her to appear to the best advantage as the little dancing girl of the play. Her dancing is unique and has never before been surpassed for grace and beauty in this city, while the extremely modest arrangement of her dresses makes her fascinating efforts absolutely devoid of all suggestiveness save the innocent frolic of a child. The interspersed choruses and songs by the quartette were very pleasing while Miss Akerstrom's introduced recitation about the advisability of your horn if you don't sell a clan brought down the house.

JULIA MARLOWE.

The coming engagement of this gifted young artist is naturally anticipated with great pleasure by the lovers of classic and Shakespearean drama. Miss Marlowe's stellar experience covers but two seasons, yet in that time she has undoubtedly established herself in the hearts of those who have had the pleasure of witnessing any of her charming representations. Her mentors have wisely refrained from pushing her beyond the limit of reasonable endurance for one so young, and if this policy is continued and her powers mature without any hot-house forcing or persistency of overwork, she should be able to take a high position among the fixed stars. Miss Marlowe's first appearance will occur Wednesday evening, Nov. 13. "As You Like It" will be presented with the star as Rosalind.

AT THE GRAND.

Ullie Akerstrom will be here two nights next week. Monday she will play "Annette," the Dancing Girl, and Tuesday "Renah, the Gypsy Girl." Or her husband, the Gypsy King, will play "The Gypsy King." She is an artist in every sense of the word. Her charming personality draws all hearts to her from the moment she puts her foot on the stage. She has an expressive childlike face, a slender, girlish figure and an unaffected simplicity of manner that eminently fits her to appear to the best advantage as the little dancing girl of the play. Her dancing is unique and has never before been surpassed for grace and beauty in this city, while the extremely modest arrangement of her dresses makes her fascinating efforts absolutely devoid of all suggestiveness save the innocent frolic of a child. The interspersed choruses and songs by the quartette were very pleasing while Miss Akerstrom's introduced recitation about the advisability of your horn if you don't sell a clan brought down the house.

JULIA MARLOWE.

The coming engagement of this gifted young artist is naturally anticipated with great pleasure by the lovers of classic and Shakespearean drama. Miss Marlowe's stellar experience covers but two seasons, yet in that time she has undoubtedly established herself in the hearts of those who have had the pleasure of witnessing any of her charming representations. Her mentors have wisely refrained from pushing her beyond the limit of reasonable endurance for one so young, and if this policy is continued and her powers mature without any hot-house forcing or persistency of overwork, she should be able to take a high position among the fixed stars. Miss Marlowe's first appearance will occur Wednesday evening, Nov. 13. "As You Like It" will be presented with the star as Rosalind.

Views of Decatur.

J. E. Saxton, the bookstore man, has undertaken a most commendable enterprise, in which he must receive the hearty support of our citizens. He has contracted for an edition of 5,000 copies of a photographic album of Decatur views. In this work will be found views of the principal streets, parks, business buildings, manufacturing establishments, churches, school houses and a number of the finest residences. He has already begun work, but it will be six months before he can place the book on sale. The price will be extremely moderate, only 35 cents a copy, and it will do much to advertise our city. It is an enterprise that has never before been undertaken in a city of this size, and Decatur is so progressive that it is bound to be a success.

Stetson's Store Broken Into.

A determined effort was made Thursday night to gain an entrance into A. Stetson's store on West Main street. A shutter on the side was wrenched open, but the window fastening held too firmly to allow the burglar to get in there. Then a window pane in the front of the store was broken out and entrance secured. In going in, however, the burglar cut his hand on the glass, leaving blood marks on the window sill. Once inside, the robber found nothing that he wanted. The money drawer was broken open, but there was no money in it. The only thing missed from the store was a small piece of cheese.

Still Another.

Macon county seems to be a very tempting field for journalistic aspirants, and it's a half week ago that there was an attempt to record the inauguration or demise of some newspaper enterprise. The latest candidate for public favor is the Macon County Record, the first issue of which was printed Friday. The publisher is Richard Couch, formerly agent for the Dallas Emigration Society. The place of publication is the village of Macon. The Record is a neat, printed paper, and has a rather prosperous air for a youngster.

A Good Sale.

Col. J. W. Thornhill reports a good sale of horses, cattle, hogs and farm implements at the place of John L. Kuns, two and one-half miles west of Cerro Gordo, Thursday, Nov. 7. Milch cows brought from $25 to $37.50. The total receipts of the sale were about $4,000.

INTERESTING CASES.

A FULL DAY IN THE CIRCUIT COURT.

Attorney J. J. Finn wants to upset all the work of the Grand Jury this term—He is overruled—Fannec Refused a New Trial—Sentenced—Hoaglan's Sentence Suspended—A Ball Player Fined One Cent.

What will prove to be a very interesting case to Macon county, if the motion made yesterday is ever sustained, was taken up in the circuit court yesterday. It was the case of the people vs. Patrick Finn and Walter Delahanty, selling liquor to minors. Their attorney, J. J. Finn, moved to quash the grand jury was impelled illegally. When the jury was first called it looked five men of being full. Judge Hughes ordered the sheriff to "fill the jury from the bystanders."

That was done, and almost the first five men that shrank into the court were taken. It happened that four of them were from Decatur. The attorney argues that "from the bystanders" does not come within the requirements of the statute, which says, "from the body of the county." He claims that the work of the grand jury was without effect, because the jury was improperly filled. Of course none of the cases that come up on indictments found by such a jury can be tried, and if any are tried, it is done illegally.

Judge Hughes overruled Mr. Finn's motion. He said the phrase he used was the same in effect as that prescribed in the statute, for the reason that the sheriff could not well have proceeded in any other way. The attorney filed exceptions to the judge's ruling and the matter was dropped for the present, but more of it is promised by Mr. Finn.

If the motion had been allowed all of the criminal cases tried at this term would have to be gone over again. That would include the Fannec trial, with the enormous amount of work connected therewith. The expense to the county would be enormous, amounting away up in the thousands.

There is no doubt that an appeal from the judge's decision in the matter will be taken to a higher court. One hundred and twenty indictments have been found against saloon keepers, and they have made up their mind to fight. This is the first blow in that line. It is intimated that the offer of advantageous settlements with them might secure the dropping of this question on their part. The attorneys for Fannec may take it up.

Early among the attorneys of the bar did not find a very general opinion that the motion of Mr. Finn has much weight. Most of those spoken to about it thought that it was a small point that would not be considered by a higher court.

One attorney who was asked about the matter, however, dropped a hint of what may be expected when the court gets down to the saloonkeepers' cases. He said if a determined resistance was made on each one the court would never be able to get to more than one-fifth of the whole number.

SENTENCED.

Ephraim Fannec received his sentence yesterday afternoon. It was not generally known that he would be brought into court, so there were but few spectators present. When he was brought in his attorneys made a motion for a new trial, and presented a written statement of errors made by the court, as sufficient grounds for a rehearing of the case. They said the court erred in the exclusion of instructions for the defense and the admission of instructions for the people that the court erred in allowing the prosecuting attorney in the opening speech to inform the jury that Fannec had been in the penitentiary, and that it erred further in allowing George Warren to testify as to what he had heard McKinley say in regard to Fannec.

The motion was overruled. Then a motion for an arrest of judgment was made. That too was denied and the prisoner was sentenced to the penitentiary for the period of his natural life. He manifested no emotion, but stood quietly and listened to the solemn words with no more apparent concern than any of the spectators. To file a bill of exceptions, on which an appeal may be taken to a higher court. It is not certain, now, however, that any appeal will be taken.

SENTENCE SUSPENDED.

John Hoaglan was sentenced to one year in the penitentiary Thursday, after he had pleaded guilty to burglary and larceny. Yesterday he was brought into court, and the judge after a few remarks of good advice, suspended sentence. Hoaglan has two small children and when sober is regarded as being a good citizen. The judge was led to believe that if he was released he would brace up, pay up his debts and behave himself. He took a guitar from the Hotel Brunswick, and some clothing from Combs' restaurant, where he left an unpaid board bill. The judge told him that for the present sentence would be suspended, and he would be allowed his liberty, but if he kept his vicious and demoralizing habits, if he neglected his family, or if he got into any more trouble of this kind, and the facts came to the judge's ears, the sheriff would arrest him forthwith and hustle him off to the penitentiary.

When released by the sheriff Hoaglan said: "Mr. Maury, I haven't any place to go, and so far as I know, not a friend in this town. I want to come back and stay with you to-night." "Of course you may," was the reply, "but I haven't any place for you but the inside." "That was what I

RAILROAD NEWS.

A. H. Stevens went to Arena yesterday.

Conductor Hardy, formerly of the P. & D. & E., is now running on the E. & T. A.

The trouble with the men on the Evansville & Terre Haute railroad has been settled.

Den Meyer is now employed in the Wash-bag baggage room. He has resigned his position on Childs' transfer wagon.

Ed Young went to Springfield Wednesday to see Clyde Lewis, who has been in the hospital several weeks. He is now able to sit up in bed.

A. H. Lander, the new master of transportation here, entered on his duties yesterday, though his appointment does not take effect until the 10th. E. A. Gould left yesterday morning to take the place made vacant by Mr. Stevens' resignation.

Mr. Crosby, the man who was said to be the man that would succeed Walter Strange as auditor of the P. H. & D. here, has just been appointed auditor of the Ohio Southern. That settles the question of his succeeding Mr. Strange, at any rate.

A new time card will go into effect on the T. H. & P. to-morrow. Besides the new train to leave here for Peoria at 7:30 and return at 9:45, the only important change in passenger trains will be of the time of the afternoon passenger train now arriving from the west at 2:14. It will get in at 10:47 in the morning and leave at 12:57.

The question of who will succeed E. T. Jeffery as general manager of the Illinois Central will probably be determined soon. But two names have thus far been mentioned in connection with the position. One is John T. McNolla, late receiver of the Wabash, and the other C. W. Smith, late first vice president of the Atchafalaya, Topeka & Santa Fe.

That is a position that has just been given up by Julius Westermann. The latter has accepted a place in a railroad office at Seattle, Wash. Mrs. L. Westermann will accompany Hans to Lincoln, to visit her sons who are there.

Set Up the Brakes.

Between Niantic and Harristown last night Conductor Horace Morgan, on the Jacksonville accommodation, noticed a man on the platform twisting up the brakewheel with all his might. The conductor placed the man under arrest, and when he reached Decatur, handed him over to Officers Koeppe and Hoy. He was drunk. His home is this side of Niantic.

A Long Distance Connection.

Telephone connection between Decatur and Quincy has been expected for several months. The lines are now completed from Quincy to the Illinois river, at Beardstown. At that point they will soon be brought under the river by a cable and connected up with the line from Springfield to Beardstown, when the circuit will be complete.

Died.

Maud Morris died with scarlet fever on Thursday, at the home of her mother, on East Condit street. She was two years old. The funeral was held yesterday from the residence.

Married.

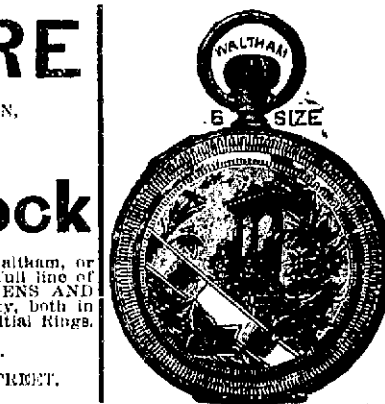

William H. Malone, of Forsyth, and Miss Mary Welch, of Macon, were married Thursday evening at the Hotel Brunswick by Justice Ira B. Curtis.

A Novel Surprise Party.

A novel surprise party was given Mrs. A. W. Chas. at her home at the corner of Franklin and Eldorado streets, last night. The company, about 30 in all, met at the paragon of Stapp's Chapel, and then went in a body to the Conklin residence. It was a jolly party. Each one took a glass of Remy Martin and the prize for the best very good supply for use this winter. The evening was passed pleasantly.

Penmanship Prizes.

The first penmanship contest at the Business college was held last week. The result was announced yesterday. The prize for most improvement was awarded to Elly Mae and the prize for best penmanship was awarded to Miss Beronice Fariss.
